

Visiting Composer

A level and GCSE Music students recently had the opportunity to work with the renowned composer, Edmund Jolliffe. His credits include many scores for BBC and Sky - most recently he wrote the music for the acclaimed television series "Who do you think you are?". The day was used to work on a variety of composing activities related to examination coursework.

Edmund is also a lecturer of Composition at the Academy of Music and we are very fortunate to have him join us as our Composer in Residence for this academic year. Edmund will continue to visit the school during the rest of the year and work with some of our Gifted and Talented students. He will write a commission to be performed by some of our students at a Composer's Concert in May 2012.
